

THE FAUCONBERG ARMS

Advent of New Village Store and Deli in Coxwold

On the 1 December Coxwold will see the return of a much needed village store and delicatessen as the Fauconberg Arms opens its doors to customers in their new shop, based in the hotel's brand new reception area.

The Fauconberg Arms has long had a reputation for producing quality food made from the best, locally sourced ingredients and now, thanks to financial support from DEFRA, they're turning those same values to providing a fantastic selection of quality regional produce.

With an emphasis on local producers, the shop will sell a wide range of groceries, deli, fresh fish (available to order and delivered daily), fruit and vegetables, and of course the Fauconberg's own specialist "vice ice", alcohol infused ice creams. Shoppers will be greeted by the aroma of a selection of breads and pastries baked on the premises.

The shop will also sell a variety of wines and spirits, Havana cigars, plus beers from around the world supplied by a specialist importer (which you will struggle to find anywhere else). Lacey's of Richmond are creating a range of Fauconberg own label cheeses, including the Fauconberg Blue and Coxwold Classic, which will be complemented by a wonderful selection of chutneys and jams.

Whether you're looking for culinary Christmas treats, a perfect pressie, or essential seasonal supplies, including coal, logs and greetings cards, you'll find it at the Fauconberg.

Opening hours: 9am - 6pm Monday to Saturday, 10am - 4pm on Sundays.

Come and celebrate the grand opening.

The shop is being officially opened on Wednesday 1 December between 12:30 and 13:00 by Clare Morrow, Chairman of Welcome to Yorkshire. There will be nibbles and treats on offer from local food producers and plenty of bubbly - why not come down and sample some of our freshly baked breads or tempting vice ice.
